Barton said: "Young Strosser is desirous of establishing himself in a small retail business in Washington street, and called this morn-

His paper was taken up as fast as it was sent in, and in less than a month he had assed the crisis, and stood perfectly safe and secure; his credit increased and his business improved, while several other firms sunk under the blow, and could not rally, among whom was Hawley, alluded to in the commencement of this article.

"How do you manage to keep above the tide?" inquired Hawley of Mr. Barton, one morning, several months after the event recorded, as he met the latter on the street, on the way to his place of business.

"Very easily indeed," replied Barton. "Well, do tell me how," said Hawley. "I claim a good degree of shrewdness, but the strongest exercise of my wits did not save me; and yet you, whose liabilities were twice as heavy as my own, have stood the shock and have come off bettered by the storm."

Horrible Homicide in Delaware—A Man Killed, Skinned and Cut Up sion of the Prisoner.

[From the Dover Delawarian, Dec. 7.] This community was startled on Thursday morning by the announcement that sad blunders, he closed his ledger, took the body of a man, partially burned, headless and footless, had been found in the Arriving opposite the door of a wealthy office of Dr. Isaac C. The facts, as far as we have been able to gather them, are as follows:

A young man known as Dr. Isaac C. West, who professed to treat patients suffering from pulmonary complaints by the inhalation process, has been occupying a room in the second story of a new building recently erected by James M. Kerbin, on Lookerman street, between Governor's avenue and New street, in which he had apparatus for manufacturing a gas called "I do not know," replied Barton, "Strosser is a young man of business talent and about half-past 11 o'clock, West left the strict integrity, and will be likely to suc- Capital Hotel, where he boarded, stating to the clerk, Mr. Culbreth, that he was going to his office for the purpose of atly, "but I am heartily tired of helping to Lending to some gas which he said he was preparing, conveying the idea that he had left the lamp burning under the retort.—At about half-past 12 o'clock Mr. G. LATEST.

Just as we were going to press last evening. Dr. West came up on the 6 P. M. train and delivered himself to the sheriff having previously telegraphed that he was coming. He says that he killed Cooch Turner in self-defence; that he got Cooch to carry up a bucket of water; that he went up stairs behind Cooch; that as he was going in the door Cooch raised a large hammer, saying, "Your money or your life"; that he (West) seized a bar of iron and struck Cooch on the neck with it, killing him instantly; that having the dead body on hand he did not know what to do with it; that he cut it up and carried it away piece at a time; that he put the head under a brush heap near Squire Smith's, and the feet in a lime pile on the Hazletville road; says that he did not intend to burn the buildings.

It is needless to say that his explanations of the killing are not credited. A large crowd awaited his arrival at the depot, where he was taken in charge by the officers. He is now lodged in jail. His brothers and father-in-law joined him in the cell. They were very much distressed and in tears; while West, coolly and apparently unconcerned, ate his supper.

After a few hours' sleep he was awakened by feeling the hot breath of some animal on his face. He moved his arms and at once understood the situation -a huge bear was snuffing him. The man, with great presence of mind, determined to keep perfectly still, for he knew if he moved or cried out, one blow of those hage paws would break his skull like a walnut. We believe that nature has supplied a remedy for nearly all the "ills that flesh reasonable remedy is very appropriate: the season for drinking cider and eating nuts, it may not be out of place to give a hint which may be useful. Medical men advise that salt should be taken with nuts, especially when enten at night. One time says a writer, while enjoying a visit from an Englishman, bickory-nuts were served in the evening, when my English friend called for salt, stating that he knew of a case of a woman eating heartily of nuts ill. The celebrated Dr. Abernethy was sent for, but it was after he became too" fond of his cup, and he was not in a condition to go. He muttered "Salt! salt!" of which no notice was taken. Next morning he went to the place and she was a corpse.—He said that had they given her salt it would have relieved her; if they would allow him to make an examination, he would convince them. On opening the stomach the nuts were found in a mass. He sprinkled salt on this, and immediately it dissolved. I have known of a sudden death myself which appeared to have been by the same cause. I generally eat salt with my nuts, and I consider it improves them.

Stock Breeding.

A convention of stock breeders was recently held at Indianapolis, which resulted in the formation of an "American As. means have been worth more than all the sociation of Short-horned Cattle Breeders." The attendance was large, and included representatives from all sections and nearly all the States of the Union. It is stated by ALLEN'S HERD BOOK that there are about 5,000 animals of the pure Durham breed in the United States; and delegates owning 3,000 of these animals were present in the Convention. These animals have a value ranging from $500 to $3,000 each, the average being about $1,500, and the total value is nearly $7,500,000. Many of the delegates from Canada, others from the Pacific States. It was remarked by one of the speakers at the Convention that the world is indebted to the fostering care of the English agricultural societies for the only pure breeds of domestic cut-

What English Farm Laborers Live On.

We give from the Dublin Freeman's Correspondence the following picture drawn from the life of an English agricultural laborer—a representative man. Our readers will understand four shilling to stand for one dollar, and ask themselves whether when the laboring class is reduced to the condition here described in the wealthiest country in the world, how can they avoid concluding that "there must be something rotten in Denmark," or feel surprised that a demand for Republicanism or some other ism," has arisen.

"The man is sixty years of age; he has worked as a farm laborer ever since he was ten years old, on one farm alone for forty years of that time. He began life as a cow minder, and then served the grandcow minder, and then served the grandfather, then the son, and now the grandson, on the same farm. His wages were the state of the son, all of them farm laborers. All have worked as he has done himself, ever since they were aight years of age. Cally the they were eight years of age. Only the two eldest have had any education. He has to walk two miles to work, and must be on the ground every morning at six. At eight he has half an hour for breakfast, generally dry bread. If he can catch anything else, he does, sometimes "a bit of bacon the size of your foreinger;" sometimes a bit of cold meat out of two pounds which had to serve the family for a week, sometimes a cold potato. After this sumptuous repast, he goes to work till oue o'clock, and then he has an hour for dinner, which consists of the same strengthoning diet as the breakfast. At half-past five he leaves off work and comes home to supper, which again consists of dry bread and tea, and any scrap of meat which could be saved out of the scant allowance for the week. From his master he never received anything extra save two quarts of home-brewed beer one day during harvest time. The most he ever bad to live upon was sixteen to eighteen shillings a week, which formed the combined carnings of the whole family. The rent of his cottage was once £1 a year and then £5.. An old cottage at 30s. was then hired, and here the family dwelt till it was pulled down. So much for the stomach-now for the back. Ever since he married be cannot remember having had a new garment. his master-what more he needs he buys second-hand in the village. "It would often puzzle a lawyer," says this man, whose name is John Lewis, of Walton parish, "to tell how people like us live. I have known us all to sit looking at each other and considering where the next meal was to come from." And this John Lewis is a hard-working, respectable man, sober, honest, self-denying—who has spent sixty years amid toil and privation such as the slaves on the cotton plantations of America have never known. No wonder that the rising generation, sons and daughter of such men as John Lewis, should look with envy on the occupant of the county jail as being less worked and better fed than they; and what is marvelous is the resignation of those people who have kept honest and respectable, not because they preferred the comforts of their bome to the county jail, but simply because they had a character to lose.

Our Horses.

The condition of horses in the wide region where the epidemic has prevailed, will not permit with safety much negligence in their winter management. It is is heir to," and the following simple and likely the effects of the disease will be seen for some time after the malady itself has DANGER FROM EATING NUTS.—As this is passed. There will be liability to other forms of sickness, and many valuable animals may be lost if they do not receivo the best of care. Among the points to be closely looked after thorough grooming is prominent. The skin should be kept clean and the pores open, so that the system can throw off the poison that the disease has generated readily. Otherwise an additional slightly adducing cause, as a cold, or a chill, may throw it back on the vital orin the evening, who was taken violently gans, and result in serious derangement.

Well ventilated stables should be provided and great care taken not to expose the animals to storms, or if so exposed, to protect them thoroughly from a chill until they are dry and rested. The food should be varied, and of a nature to give strength and keep the bowels moderately loose. Farmers who have been in the habit of taking their horses off grain on the approach of winter, should not now follow their usual custom, but give in addition to hay, some more nutritious but not highly stimulating food. Carrots are extremely valuable. Out-meal sprinkled on moisten-ed hay is also good feed. The best practice with the disease has been to sustain the strength and appetite of the sick animals, by cooling and nutritious food, groom well, moderately exercise in the middle of the day, and keep them comfortable in the drugs prescribed, in curing the sick, and will be needful for some time after convalescence. In fact it is best for the interests of all horse owners to adopt the treatment above indicated as a permanent prac-

All housewives may not know how materially the effects of hard and soft water differ in the cooking of various vegetables.
While one species of vegetable repuires hard or soft water as the case may be, another species becomes sensibly deteriorated by it. For instance, peas and beans cooked in hard water, containing lime or gypsum, will not boil tender, because these su ces harden vegetable caseine. In soft water they boil tender, and lose a certain raw, rank taste, which they retain in hard water. The addition of salt, often checks this, causing the vegetables to retain their peculiar flavoring principles, besides much nutritions matter which might be lost in soft water. Constitutional Amendments.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of some of the Republican members of the Legislature, to vote with the Conservatives in making some changes in our State Constitution. This is all right. Every one knows there should be changes made, and that without unnecessary delay. At the time when the Constitution was framed the wisest legislation did not prevail .-Its adoption by the people was made with an understanding that all necessary corrections could be made hereafter, when we were fully established again as a State and free from bayonet rule, Arrangements should be made relative to the heavy State debt, which, with its accrued interest, has grown to such an enormous amount that it is next to impossible to pay it. It ought not to remain in its present condition, and the people look to the Legislature for some attempt, at least, to relieve them from its burdens. The whole affair has nothing to do with party politics, and we hope there are enough Republicans in both Houses of our Legislatute, who can and will do all that is possible to effect a change for the better, and at the earliest practical mo-

It is said that Mr. Ames admits the authenticity of letters that are construed as avowing a plan for bribing Congressmen by placing Pacific Railroad Stock among them "where it would do good." Col. McComb swears that he furnished to Mr. Ames the names of certain members of Congress, and the question is, "were these gentlemen bribed."

We look forward with considerable interest for further developments.

Immigration.

There being a lull in politics, we are pleased to notice several of our cotemporaries engaged in the laudable purpose of drawing public attention to the development of the hidden resources of our good old State, and devising ways and means of encouraging immigration into this

The Raleigh Sentinel has the following, which, we hope, our Legislature will not pass idly by:

"Our sister State of Virginia began three or four years ago to make active efwriter travelled for several months in that State, and he was constantly impressed industrious immigrants he met with in many parts of that noble old Commonwealth. In some sections, Prince Edward they come," Several prominent gentlemen had taken the matter in hand, and and had made liberal provisions for the Chestnut St., Philadelphia. encouragement of immigration. Wo regret we have not by us the action of the Virginia Legislature that we might draw some lessons from it for our own encouragement.

Not the least important of the measures that should be discussed by our own Legislature, is the best means of fostering might enure to the benefit of the State .the North and of Europe.

We hope the present Legislature will be full tide of immigration may flow over

It is presumed that some shavings near the fire place communicated the flames to the clothes of the child. flames to the clothes of the unfortunate

We return thanks to Messrs. HALE & Son for a copy of "A Cyclopedia of the Best Thoughts of Charles Dickens." It is a large elegantly printed, and tastefully bound volume, making it truly a sumptuous book, just suited to the festive season. Dickens has woven more pleasant fancies about Christmas-tide than any other author. During his lifetime every returning advent season brought forth a pleasing story, now so sadly missed. In this book all his "best thoughts" sparkle like pure gems in elegant setting. A few copies at the Book Store.

HANGING AT LEXINGTON .- On last Friday the execution of Thomas Johnson took place at Lexington. A large crowd was in attendance, numbering about 1,000. The execution was private. Johnson, it will be remembered committed a terrible outrage upon a respectable lady, aged about 62 years, on the 16th of September, 1871. The story is as follows: "Eight and one-half miles from Lexington, within one and a half of Thomasville, the next station on the railroad, he met a highly respectable lady (whose name, from motives of delicacy, is withheld,) aged 62. She had been to the village of Thomasin the Presbyterian Church, in Winston, on ville to make a few purchases, and was at the 1st and 3rd Sundays of the month, at this time (5 o'clock, P. M.,) returning to her home, little dreaming that this fiend was about to commit on her person the most foul of human crimes.

After she had passed Johnson she heard some one walking behind her; and upon turning to see who it could be she was seized and roughly dragged from the rail-road track to the woods. Johnson did not ay anything to her, but in order to prevent any outcry he choked her severely and gagged her with a large spike. He then accomplished his hellish purpose, and left his victim nearly dead."

The deed was committed not far from the lady's residence, and she managed to get home, where she found her nephew, who immediately started in pursuit of the fiend. Upon reaching Thomasville he of Greensboro, and taken into custody .-He denied all knowledge of the affair, but Our Western friends left for their homes was taken to Lexington and thence to was re-sentenced, and executed as above. Johnson then addressed the crowd as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen,-I stand at the point of death. All you people, black and white, heed this warning; I am innocent of the crime for which I am about to die. I was arrested and convicted on an unjustifiable charge. I again want you all here to take warning by this, that I die an in-nocent man." Folly's Fandango.

- In youth's bright days—'twas long before
 My dancing days were over—
 I voted work a horrid bore,
 And idly lived in clover.
 I danced as I shall never dance
 Again, now wisdom's riper,
 And capered on in ignorance
 Of who should pay the piper.
- I danced until the money flew
- Out wildly from my pockets; I danced till dull and sunken grew My eyes within their sockets I danced until rheumatic gout Was of each toe a griper— And then it was I first found out
- Who had to pay the piper. I danced till I'd worn out my soles,

 My stockings needed mending,

 My coat and trowsers were in holes,
- My very hat wae rending.

 I went to Friendship for a loan,
 But Friendship proyed a viper,
 And I'd no money of my own
 Wherewith to pay the piper.
- I set my shoulder to the wheel;
 I worked just like a nigger:
 My heap, through constant toil and zeal,
 By slow degrees grew bigger.
 From off the slate of each old score At last I was the wiper;
 And now, you see, I dance no moreLet others pay the piper.

Indeed, when we think into how one come to see me agin, and I konkluded many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well as extending I was looking mity bad, and axed him to excuse me as I was not feeling well. I went down to Dr. Alexander, got a dose of salts. I told him I was sick, and the reason why. He told me all about it, and said there was about 100 of them fellars in town, and they bored half an inch at the first interview, and an inch on the second in the same hole, and so on till they got to the hollow, and the patients give in and took a policy. I don't know about that, but will say they are the friendliest, most sympathizin' and kind hearted men I ever struck ; only I don't like so much talk about coffins and graveyards. I didn't like the salts.

THE "FIFTH CALF."-A good story is told of a couple of farmers who lived a few miles apart. One day one called on the other, happening at dinner. The person called upon, by the way, was a penurious old fellow. He was scated at the table enjoying his meal. The visitor drew to the stove, looking very wistfully at the table, expecting the farmer to ask him to dino. The old farmer kept on eating "What's the news up your way, neighbor?" (still eating.) "No news, eh?"
"No, I believe not." (Presently an idea struck the visitor.)-"Well, yes, friend, I did hear of one item of news that was worth something." "Ha, what is that?"

"Neighbor Jones has a cow that has five calves." "Is that so? What does the fifth call do when the others are sucking ?"

"Why he stands and looks on, just as I do, like a fool."

"Mary, put on another plate." An Irishman called on a lady and gentleman, in whose employ he was, for the purpose of getting some tea and tobacco.

"I had a drame last night, yer honor," said he to the gentleman. "What is it pat?" "Why, I dreamed that yer honor made me a present of a pound of tobacky, and her ladyship there-heaven bless her-gave me some tay for the good wife." "Ah, pat, dreams go by the cantraries, you know," said the gentleman. "Faith, and they may that," said Pat; "so her ladyship is to give the tobacky and his honor the tay."

A farmer, whose cribs were full of corn, was accostomed to pray that the wants of the needy might be supplied; but when any one in needy circumstances asked for a little corn, he said he had none to spare. One day after hearing his father pray for the poor and needy, his little son said

"Father, I wish I had your corn." "Wby, my son, what could you do with it?" asked his father.

"I would answer your prayers," replied

"You saved my life at the battle of Marlvern Hill," said a beggar to a Captain. "Saved your life! How?" "I served under you when you ran away, and I followed."

"Here, you young rascal, wake up and give an account of yourself. Where have

"After the girls, father."
"Did you ever know me to do so when I was a boy?" "No sir, but mother did."

A boy in a country school was reading the sentence, "The lighthouse is a landmark by day and a beacon by night," and rendered it thus: "The lighthouse is a landlord by day and a deacon by night."

PROSPECTUS FOR 1878. SIXTH YEAR.

THE ALBINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitt to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores. THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity has none of temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the end of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception,—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price and character. The possesor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides. THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regular-

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of sub-scription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed it present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the pas year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America. In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest, avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copier of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced in proportion to the country. be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance doubly sure," by the following unparalleled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873. Every subscriber to the Aldine, who pays in advance Every subscriber to the Aldine, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14x20 inches-are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department the chromos will of competition in every department the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate over the signature of the publish receive a certificate over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE.)

enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent atracts of this baleful distemper. This "CURE" expels the misamatic poison of FEVER AND AGUE from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. It is not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of everybody; and in billious districts, where FEVER AND AGUE prevails, everybody should have it, and use it freely, both for cure and protection. It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich. A gent superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral; consequently it produces no quints or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the misamatic polson. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Hendache, Bilindness, Toothache, Earsohe, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "CURE" expels the polson from the blood, and consequently cures them all alike. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and personstravelling or temporarily residing in the mainitions districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any thing won so widely and sedeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and nigher their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for inciplent consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obtinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.
